

Building Relationships

What is the best way to build a good relationship with customers in your opinion?	How should a manager build a good relationship with his or her staff?
Do you think regular staff meetings help to build positive relationships?	Should staff members socialise together outside of work?
What are the most important things to remember when building relationships with business partners?	Is it possible to maintain a good relationship with a business partner without meeting face-to-face?
Would you say that your company has a good relationship with its customers?	Do you get on well with your boss? Why or why not?
How important is it for staff members to build relationships between each other?	Would you say you have good relationship building skills? What are you good at?
What are the most common reasons for a breakdown in relations between business partners?	What is the best way to make new business contacts?